“A cry in the night and a child is born.
A child in a stable, there isn’t any room.
A cry in the night and God has made our restlessness His home.”

Those are the words exactly as I first heard them sung more than thirty-five years ago. There has been much restlessness since then. Should God feel more at home?

As Christmas draws near, let us seek out the restless, for in them we shall see the face of God.

May this be a blessed Christmas for you all.
